HIGH TENSION

S THE HOUR of execution ap-Proached Tom Denton felt an unbearable tenseness grip him. It was still a few minutes before 11 p. m., but in his mind's eye he could vividly see the scene which was taking place in Sing Sing prison several hundred miles away. Robert Chalmers would by now have made his last confession to the priest, still pleading innocence. Far down the grim corridor the iron clang of an opening gate could be heard perhaps, and the slow shuffling of the guard which would escort the doomed man to the death chamber.

Now he could see the terrified man led to the hideous chair, the electrodes strapped to the shaven head. Only a few seconds remained before the fatal hour now...only a few brief moments of life remaining for the man he'd hated so much, the man he'd so cleverly framed on a phoney murder rap.

Quickly he glanced at his watch. As the second hand swept towards twelve he held his breath. Five seconds, four, three, two...one...death! He could almost hear the ghastly buzz of powerful coils, the hiss of high voltage passing through what was once a man...

And then it was over. Sweat stood out heavily on Tom Denton's forehead, making him hot and cold by turns. Quickly he poured himself a stiff drink to restore his shattered nerves. Nothing to fear now. Time to relax and think about the future. Time to gloat over his victory. Ha ha ha!

It was then he realized that he'd been sitting in the dark. No need for darkness now. Lights! Gaiety! But as he rose to go to the wall switch his eyes seemed to play a strange trick on him. For a moment it was as if he perceived a brightly glowing spot in the comer of the room, no larger than a coin, glowing fiercely. But then shaking his head to rid himself of the disturbing hallucination, he suddenly imagined that the coin had grown in size. It was no longer like a penny. No, it was large as a burning silver dollart Fascinated, his eyes remained riveted on the strange phenomenon. It was only when he realized that it was not an hallucination that he screamed. For there, burning brightly, was a blob of what seemed to be living electricity! It was the size of a basketball now, growing larger, larger, larger!

And then, impossibly, the thing began to take on shape, the shape of a human form!

Tom Denton shrieked wildly, backing against the far comer of the room. "W-What is it? It can't...it can't be!"

Out of the burning void a grim face emerged, the face of his innocent enemy, Robert Chalmers. crackling like living flame, a voice seemed to fill his ears. 'You have sent me to my doom," it intoned. "But I shall not rest unavenged!"

"No! Don't! Please!"

But it was too late. An arm of living electricity touched him, sending a severe shock bursting through his frame. His voice choked in his throat and his knees buckled. And then there was only a great burning flash of light, before everything went black

The police found it a great mystery the next day. For how could a man die by electrocution, when there was not even an exposed wire in the room?

From EDITORS-TON

every one of you for the wonderful response "Forbidden Worlds" has been getting at the newsstands. You may have heard about the terrific glut of supernatural comics which started overflowing the display space of dealers starting about two years ago. As you probably know, it got so bad that it was difficult to find any particular title among the droves that cluttered up space.

But that didn't stop the loyal following of "Forbidden Worlds" from getting their favorite magazine each month! No, sir! We've heard the most marvellous stories from dealers...how so many of you insisted on getting what you were entitled to: the very best supernatural comic magazine in

Americal

With this magnificent testimony to the success of our efforts we've gone all out to give you even more for your money. We've never stopped striving for better stories, better art, more intensive research into the fascinating realms we call The Unknown. Our motto is that perfection doesn't exist, so that there's always room for improvement.

We think you'll find this issue one of the most thrilling we've ever offered. "Portrait of Carlotta" starts things off on a weird and chilling note...something unusual, we promise. "The Beginning and the End!" is a top-drawer hair-raiser, with as startling a climax as we've encountered. If you don't think so, we'll eat our words! "The Evil Eye" packs an eerie wallop all its own, just right for midnight reading. As for "The Beast in the Berg", we'll only say that an awful menace awaits you in its spine-tingling pages.

We've gotten many wonderful suggestions from our fans. Have you written us lately? Why not take this opportunity of letting us know your preferences? Remember, "Forbidden Worlds" is your magazine! Simply write to The Editor, "Forbidden Worlds", 45 West 45th Street, New York 36, N. Y. Here's what some of our readers are saying:

"Dear Editor:

I have read many exciting tales of the supernatural, and I've not yet found a magazine which can top your 'Forbidden Worlds'.

--Wayne Baker, Columbus, Indiana''

"Dear Editor:

I think the last issue of 'Forbidden Worlds' was just plain wonderful. I like all the issues, because they always pack so very many thrillers. I haven't missed an issue yet. Keep up the good work and you'll never lose me as a fan.

-Regena Sterling, Detroit, Mich."

"Dear Editor:

My husband and I read all your stories in 'Forbidden Worlds' every month and enjoy them very much. So far as we're concerned 'Forbidden Worlds' is the very best! Please have more stories like 'The Drakko' and 'Love Me Forever!'

-- Mrs. Jack Rockwell, Kingston, N. Y."

Yes, anyone from 5 to 80 can draw or sketch or paint anything now... the very first time you use the "Magic Art Reproducer" like a professional artist—no matter how "hopeless" you think you are! An unlimited variety and amount of drawings can be made. Art is admired and respected by everyone. Most hobbies are expensive, but drawing costs very little, just some inexpensive paper, pencils, crayons, or paint. No costly upkeep, nothing to wear out, no parts to replace. It automatically reproduces anything you want to draw on any sheet of paper. Then easily and quickly follow the lines of the "picture image" with your pencil. and you have an accurate original drawing that anyone would think an artist had done. No guesswork, no judging sizes and shapes! Reproduces black and white and actual colors for paintings.

this makes drawing larger or amplier on you wish.

Anyone can use it on any desk, table, board, etc,—indoors or outdoors! Light and compact to be taken wherever you wish. No other lessons or practice or talent needed! You'll be proud to frame your original drawings for a more distinctive touch to your home. Give them to friends as gifts that are "different," appreciated.

Have fun! Be popular! Everyone will ask you to draw them. You'll be in demand! After a short time, you may find you can draw well without the "Magic Art Reproducer" because you have developed a "knack" and feeling artists have—which may lead to a good paying art career.
